Foxtrot is Ready for His Furever Home with Your Family

Foxtrot is one of those big, totally loveable orange male tabbies. You know the type, the ones that relax you just by being in their presence. He is a solid guy—almost 18lbs of affection. He is neutered, vaccinated, and three years old.

Foxtrot was caught as a feral, part of a spay-neuter-return event. We would love him to find a furever home because he deserves it and whoever chooses him will get the most wonderful, loving addition to their home.

He is also one of our special needs kitties. He became FIV positive after being attacked by another cat in the colony. FIV is only spread through deep wounds and sex but since he is such a cool cat and loves other kitties, that won't be a problem. He because he is neutered, sexual contact is not an issue either.

FIV is nothing to be afraid of...

FIV positive cats can live long, healthy, and relatively normal lives with no symptoms. FIV cannot be spread casually through litter boxes, food, water bowls, snuggling, grooming, or playing. It is transferred when an infected cat bites or breaks another cat's skin. So a neutered cat in a home is highly unlikely to infect any other cats.

Read stories from real cat owners sharing their experiences about FIV positive cats and FIV negative cats living together in peace.
